LIPPITT'S SPECIFIC. FOR THE CURE OF Dysentery, Diarrhœa, and Summer Complaint.

N presenting this justly celebrated Medicine to the pub-lic, we make no rash assertions of its efficacy, nor is any ope held out to the afflicted which facts do not warrant. This remedy having been for years used in this place, for the cure of the above diseases, and those appertaining to the same class, the Proprietor has been induced to offer it on a more extensive scale, with a view to lessen the amount of human suffering. I have never known it to fail when the directions have been strictly adhered to.

Many useless nostrums have been palmed upon the public, and I hesitated for some time, until thoroughly convinced

Extract of a letter received from S. J. Carroll BALTIMORE, Jan. 10th, 1853.
WM. H. LIPPITT, Esq.,—Dear Sir:—I have no hesitation in saying that your Specific is one of the best medicines extant for Dysentery, Diarrha, &c. You possibly may recollect my case; if it has escaped your memory, I will give you briefly the facts. I had tried everything that I had seen used, but with little success; and after using enough to start twenty-five Homeopathic M. Ds., I began to despair, when you kindly offered me your invaluable Medicine, which SCULPTURING, LETTERING, or CARVING, execu- cured me most effectually.

Yours, truly, WILMINGTON, N. C., August 14, 1851.

WM. H. LIPPITT, Esq.,—Dear Sir:—I have used your Specific in two cases in my family for Dysentery. In one 4 papspoonsful effected a complete cure—in the other, three had the like effect.

Aug. 25th, 1854

The following stanzas appeared a few years ago in the poet's corner of a Canadian newspaper. We think that all who read them will at once pronounce them worthy of pre-

You've often heard me promise, Fred

One day to tell you where
And from what treasured heads I shred
These treasured locks of hair.
Well now the time has come at last,
Your birthday festival
Has blithely come and swiftly pass'd,
And you shall know them all. Twelve years have fleeted since I bow'd

In tearless grief, my knee
Beside our dying sire, and vow'd
A parent's care for thee;
And I remember how you tried,
Till even the menials wept,
To wake our father when he died,
And said, "he only slept." This short curl'd lock, half dark, half gray, I clipt from off his brow, I've kept it sacred till to-day, We will divide it now:

And when you look upon it, Fred, Still think you hear the voice That with its dying accents said "My Father, bless my boys!" This raven braid belong'd to one You never knew, my brother,
She only bless'd her new-born son
And died—our sainted mother!
She left us—but with us she left
A fairer, tenderer flower;

But like a plant of sun bereft, She wither'd from that hour. Spring's buds, around our mother's tomb, Came just in time to waive; We saw the flowers of Autumn bloom Upon our sister's grave.

My boy! your tears are falling fast
On yonder golden tress,
It is a relic, and the last
Of her lost loveliness.

And this long waving silken curl, Ah! that you must not share; You never knew the angel girl Who gave that auburn hair. My beautiful! my blessed one!
And she, too, passed away;
I strove to breathe "Thy will be done,"

But it was hard to say. O! by how weak and frail a thing May the heart's depths be stirred; How close and long will memory cling To one light look or word; And are not these slight locks with more Of spirit-meaning fraught, Translated from the German for the Pennsylvania Inquirer. Distinguished Men in Spain—Gen. Leopold O'Don-nell, and the O'Donnell Family.

The O'Donnells are an old family in Ireland, to whom the former province of Tyrconnell and the present county of Donegal belonged. They lost their possessions from continual hostilities with the O'Neals, but upon the destruction of their enemies, under Queen Elizabeth, they received them back again. The brother of the gallant Hugh Roe O'Donnell, Rory or Roderick O'D., was created Baron of Donegal and Count of Tyrconnell by James II. Upon the expulsion of James II. from the English throne, and his attempt to defend Ireland, the O'Donnels rallied under the standard of the Stuarts, and after the disastrous battle of the Boyne, they were, in consequence, obliged to leave the country. A portion of them, under the title of Counts of Tyrconnell, settled in Austria, where they attained to high posts of State. Charles, Count O'Donnell, of Tyrconnell, entered the imperial service, and at the battle of Piacenza obtained the grade of general. In 1756 he fought in Bohemia, and, after the battle of Labosiz, he was made lieutenant field-marshal, and in the battle of Kollin he commanded the cavalry, and was promoted to the post of general. After the wounding of Daun at Torgau, he undertook the commandin-chief, but only to reconduct the army to Bohemia. He was less fortunate in Silesia, where he was defeated in 1761, at Reichenbach, and compelled to surrender Schweidnitz. In 1764 he commanded in the Netherlands, and in 1768 was appointed governor of Transylvania. He died at Vienna in 1770. Leopold O'Donnell, the present Minister of War, the second son of the Count of Abispal, after 1833 fought against Don Carlos, and obtained the rank of general of division. As a partisan of the Queen Regent, Maria Christina, he rendered her great services in 1840 upon the surrender of the regency at Valeucia. He lived for a short time afterwards in France, then went to Bilbao and attempted a rising in October, 1841, in favor of the ex-regent at Pampeluna, which, however, his cousin frustrated. He fled to France, but returned to Spain in 1843 to help to overthrow Espartero. The government hereupon sent him as governor to the island of Cuba, from whence he was recalled in 1848, because of his efforts to suppress the slave trade. Charles, Count O'-Donnell, the son of the deceased captain-general of Old Castile, formerly served as colonel of the royalist volunteers, and, in the army of the Regent Maria Christiana, he gained the rank of a general, and for some time likewise commanded the British legion .-Devoted to the Regent Espartero in 1841, he frustrated the rising of the Christinos at Pampeluna, and, after his fall, he went with him to England. The present head of the family of O'Donnells, in Ireland, is Sir Richard Annesley O'Donnell, baronet of Newporthouse, who inherited the title from his brother. Francis, Count O'Donnell, was Austrian Minister of Finance in 1800, but died in the following year. Count O'Donnell, of Tyrconnell, Austrian lieutenant field Marshall, married Christina, daughter of the Messrs Legare and Dunovant having been related in Prince of Ligne, and died December 1, 1843. His eldest son, Maximilian Charles Lamoral, Count O'-Donnell, of Tyrconnell, born October 29, 1812, is an

CINCINNATI, Sept. 1 .- A few days since, just after the steamer Timour, No. 2, had landed her passengers at Edward's Yard, near Jefferson city, Missouri, her three boilers exploded, scattering death and destruction around, and leaving the boat a total wreck. At the latest accounts six persons were lying on the shore dead, and it was supposed that 15 or 16 others were thrown overboard and drowned. Owing to the confusion and excitement the exact number of killed could not be ascertained. About seventeen persons were scalded and otherwise injured. Mr. Dix, the pilot, was in a dying condition, not having spoken since the explosion. Among the killed are Wm. Kilcher, Ed. O'Mahey and D. Conners. Among the wounded are Patrick Finney, deck hand, badly scalded; Edward Roach, deck hand, scalded: three children of Mr. Charles Eckley, the second clerk, scalded; Mr. White, a merchant of Roanoake, scalded. Mr. Eckers, the clerk of the boat, had his family on board, and two of his children were severely scalded. The injured men are principally deck hands. Two of the boilers were thrown on the railroad track, and the other into the river. Many pieces of wreck were found half a mile from the place where the explosion occurred. The hull was breaking up, and but few of the goods on board would be saved. The entire upper works are destroyed. The engineers of the boat Charles W. McCord and John R. Scott, gave bonds n the sum of $4000 to answer any charge of misconduct or negligence. The boat was from St. Louis, bound to St. Joseph, and was valued at $15,000.

As necessity is said to be the mother of invention, Sugar and Rice were firm in Havana. Exchange we do not doubt but that in the course of some time we will have abundant supplies of paper manufactu-red from various substances. Already straw has been used with considerable success in the manufac ture of paper. In a number of the Kingston, (Ja.) Journal, received by the last arrival from that Island, we find an article containing suggestions regarding paper manufacturing. The Journal, by the way, has felt the pressure of the increased price of paper, and reduced its sheet. From this article we learn that no attempt to establish a paper manufactory has yet been made in Jamaica. And, says the Journal :

"With every convenience of a local nature for such an establishment, this country possesses numerous plants and trees which could afford the fibrous material for paper of almost every quality. The plantain, penguio, dagger-plant, cocoanut, many grasses, and various trees whose cuticle resembles the lace bark; and we may remark that here also linen and cotton rags are mostly destroyed; that is, they are not safey kept for sale. And these article are profuse here, from the circumstance of so much light clothing being worn in the country. The plantain, a tree of great growth, might keep of itself a constant supply of fibrous material for paper of fine quality-there could be no want for that of the coarser sorts. Were it not for absurd tariffs and prohibitory import duties, these resources of Jamaica might be turned to great advantage by American capitalists. But we believe that in parts of our own country, grasses might be obtained in abundance, from which a very serviceable quantity of cheap paper could be manufactured. There is at any rate a fine field open now for American ingenuity, and wealth incalculable would be the reward of any who should invent a process of manufacturing cheaply a good quality of paper from some substance of which the supply would be unfailing. I met beggars and loafers at every corner, and, strange as you may regard it, it is a fact that a cent is as gladly received by these poor creatures as a dollar would be by any servant in the city of Mobile. I often ask these poor creatures, "Why they don't go to work." Their answer invariably is, that "they can get nothing to do and have no friends to help them get into business." Those who are more fortunate and succeeded in procuring employment, are paid from nothing up to eight dollars per monththe former relying upon the liberality of guests for the means of support. Benevolent Interposition. Whatever may be thought of the taste of the comliments officially addressed by Mr. Spence, our Minister at Constantinople, to the Sultan, we cannot but admire the benevolent use he made of his good impressions afterwards in behalf of the citizens of Greece, who were about to be summarily expelled from the Turkish capital. He urged with effect the propriety of an extension of the time (only 15 days,) n which the Greeks were to depart. It seems from his letter that there were at that time in Pera, and the villages in the vicinity of Constantinople, upwards of twenty-five thousand subjects of the King of Greece, some of whom were very extensively engaged in commerce, many of whom had large families, and whose expulsion would involve most of them in utter ruin. Mr. Spence therefore made earnest intercession in behalf of the unfortunate people -We copy a few passages from his letter: "The contest between the Sublime Porte and the Emperor of Russia has elicited the sympathies of a large portion of the christian world in behalf of the Ottoman nation. This sympathy, springing in a great degree because the rights of a weaker are invaded by a stronger power, has induced some nations to take up arms in defence of those rights, and awaken. ed in others a deep solicitude for the success of the efforts of the Sultan to maintain them." Referring to the six months which had already elapsed since the commencement of the war with Russia, and the indulgence granted to the subjects of the latter, Mr. Spence continues:

"Having granted this indulgence to the subject of a nation against whom war is already declared, the armies of which have already invaded his territories, whose swords have been stained with the blood of his subjects, will his Imperial Majesty, the Sultan. refuse to extend it to a nation against whom as yet he has promulgated no declaration of war, and which as yet has committed no avowed act of hostility? "The Ottoman Porte, an eminent christian writer remarks, has at all times, on international subjects. given an example of moderation to the other Powers of Europe. I trust it will avail itself of this opportunity of proving the justness of the remark; and by extending the time limited for the departure of the subjects of Greece from its dominions, give to the world another example of that moderation and humanity which has hitherto marked its policy towards other nations." Mr. S. concludes by the following explanatory paragraph, which seems to us to be in good taste: The Republic of which I have the honor to be the diplomatic agent near the Sublime Porte has, as your Excellency is fully aware, sedulously avoided all interference in the disputes which have heretofore disturbed the peace of Europe The misfortunes, social or political, which have resulted from them have, however, never failed to elicit from our citizens that sympathy which a happy and generous people never refuse to the unfortunate and oppressed. I have heard so much about the tainted field that I believe I would deplore an attachment into line myself and manure them as well as an officer. You ask me if the guard presented arms. He did nt, but a sweet little man with an epilepsy on his shoulder and a smile on his face, did, and asked me if I would'nt go into a tent and smile. I told him that we could both smile as well outside, when he politely touched his chateau and left me." The commissary presented a hard wood stool, upon which she reposed herself. "This is one of the seats of war, I suppose?" said she.-"Oh, what a hard lot a soldier is objective to! and I don't wonder a mite at the hardening influences of a soldier's life." "What is that for?" asked she, as the noise of a cannon saluted her ear. "I hope they ain't firing on my account." There was solicitude in her tone, as she spoke, and she was informed that it was only the governor who had just arrived upon the field. "Dear me!" said she, "how cruel it is to make the old gentleman come away down here, when he is so feeble, he has to take his staff with him wherever he goes." She was so affected at the idea that she had to take a few drops of white wine to restore her to equilibrium, and to counteract the dust of the "tainted field." A brave entertainment was hers, and as she reviewed the troops many a sword gleamed its tribute, many a banner bowed in salute, many a white plume nodded to the relict of the great corporal The governor thought it was all for him THE CROPS IN EUROPE.—The harvest accounts

I have no particular objection to a man's being mean, provided he is wise withal, but when he combines insanity with meanness, then, I think, he becomes emphatically, and unutterably contemptible. I find the people here particularly partial to that species of operation which is figura-tively described as biting off your nose to spite your face. Owing to the decline of meanness in the Southern States, Cincinnati, I fancy, has been established as an institute for the cultivation and propagation of meanness, and the perfection they have arrived at in an odd thing that they should rear so many hogs here, for I verily believe that if such a thing as a hog had semblance of the people in moral character to that that after all casualties and losses, there will be a full beast would at once strike the most unanalogically. average supply."

From the Washington Sentinel Is there Danger to our Country from Immigration ? As many good people who profess to be peculiarly concerned about the welfare of the country are raisng a great clamor against foreigners -as they maniest much alarm lest they shall seize upon the reins f government and dictate to our citizens their reigious faith, it may not be amiss, very briefly, to institute an inquiry into the grounds of this apprehension. Is there any danger to our institutions, civil and religious, from the foreigners now in this couny, and such others as may come to our shores?

By the census of 1850 the population of the Unied States was over twenty three millions, of which ighteen millions were native whites, over two milions were foreign born, thirty-nine thousand were of loss unknown natives, and three millions giwo hundred thousand vere slaves. From 1846 to 1850, 1.569, 850 foreigners came to our shores. From 1820 to 1830, the average number was only 20,000 a year. -From 1830 to 1846, about 70,000 a year. The Irish famine and the continental revolutions increased the emigration to 240,000 in 1847, and to 300,000 in 1850. The total number of emigrants to the United States since 1790, and living in 1850, together with descendants, amounted, (when the census was taken,)

Now, if all these foreigners were ignorant and dean excitement mob in consequence of a dispatch being praved, if they loved the institutions under which received from Pittsburg stating that a slave was on they were record, and desired the constitutions under which with the praved and desired the constitutions under which were record, and desired the constitutions under which the constitution and the constitution are constituted to the constitution of the constitution and the constitution are constituted to the constitution of the constitution and the constitution are constituted to the constitution of the constitution and the constitution are constituted to the constitution of the constitution and the constitution are constituted to the constitution are constituted to the constitution and the constitution are constituted to the constitution and the constitution are constituted to the constitution are const the train. Here were half a dozen young girls, some of them in deshabille, sitting upon the mats around a huge calabash, each girl having a bunch of awa roots beside her, portions of which all were chewing. After reducing it to a pulpy consistency between their beautifully white teeth, they would toss it into the large calabash, while their mouths were relieved from superficous secretions by a smaller vessel placed for that purpose. Though ostensibly engaged in conversation, it was evident that the sentiments of the old folks were in the calabash, to judge from the longing glances cast upon it. I noticed a venerable looking individual, (his only attire a malo,) who leaned completely against the centre post, and watched intently his heart's delight. Allaire, after firing a shot here and there, proceeded to comment upon the subject before us.

Good News from Home! AS SUNG BY JOHN FARRENBERG .- Campbell Minstrels.

Good news from home-good news for me! Has come across the deep blue sea, From friends that I have left in tears-From friends that I've not seen for years. But since we parted long ago, My life has been a scene of woe, But now a joyful hour has come, For I have heard good news from home. Good news, &c.

No father's hand to guide me now, No mother's tears to soothe my brow. No sister's voice falls on my ear, No brother's smiles again to cheer. But though I've wandered far away, My heart is full of joy to-day; For friends across the ocean's foam Have sent to me good news from home Good news, &c.

When shall I see that cottage door, Where I've spent years of joy before; 'Twas there I knew no grief or care--My heart was always happy there. Tho' I may never see it more, Or stand upon my native shore, Where'er on earth I'm doomed to roam. My heart will be with those at home. Good news &c.

GREEN GAUZE-LINGS .- A cotemporary, noticing the face that the dandies of Paris have begun the fashion of tying green gauze veils to their hats, to protect their delicate complexion from the darkening power of the sun's rays, says: They only want the feathers to make them real green gauze

DIED.

In this County, on the 2d ult., REBECCA SARAH ELI-ZABETH, daughter of Robert M. and Margaret A. Fill-The Warwick Baptist Association of New York, at its last meeting, administered a stinging rebuke soared to that better land on high—to the heaven of eterna,

"Cease, ye mourners, cease to langush
O'er the graves of those you love;i
Pain and death and night and angui h,
Enter not the world above."

"Your committee having examined the correspondence of sister associations, and finding allusions made to the celebrated protest of Clergy of New England, recommend the adoption of the following:

"Whereas, the assertion has been extensively circulated, that the ministers of all the religious denominations in the northern States have united in prowords were: "I am going home; Oh! let me go home;—you wont let me go now, but to-morrow my l'ather is coming; he will fight for me, then you will be obliged to let me go!" Her words were true; at the dawn of the next day she awoke
